They say you only get one opportunity to make a first impression. In the world of desktop computing, that first impression is cast during the machine boot and login process. Before you step off on the wrong foot, take a moment to understand where you stand with our cloud-based login analysis. It's free. It's easy, and what is there to lose ... other than the opportunity to cut some time off of your machine boot and login process.

The Process

After installing our extremely lightweight agent, we'll begin collecting metrics and information on your desktop (both Microsoft Windows-based physical PCs and virtual desktops are supported). Detailed machine boot and login steps such as Group Policy, Domain Controller timing details, client extensions, user profile, theme and network restore times will be provided. All of this as well as machine and directory information will be included in your report.

Reporting

The easy to read report provides actionable details that can be used to identify areas within the machine boot and login process that may be contributing to a poor user experience.
